

Jason Stober

Associate

514.868.5613 | jstober@torys.com

Education

JD, 2017, University of Ottawa Faculty of Law
 LLL, 2016, University of Ottawa Faculty of Law

Bar Admission

Québec, 2018
 Ontario, 2018

Practice

Jason Stober’s practice focuses on litigation and dispute resolution, including civil and commercial matters and class actions.

Representative Work

- a Canadian Schedule I bank in a class action in Québec alleging violations to consumer protection legislation in connection with chequing account NSF fees
- an enterprise software and services developer in a class action at trial in Québec and in proposed class actions in Ontario and Alberta alleging violations to consumer protection legislation following an interruption in service
- a global pharmaceutical company in a proposed product liability class action in Québec alleging consumer misrepresentation in the labelling of various opioid-based narcotics used to relieve moderate to severe pain
- a Canadian Schedule I bank in a proposed class action in Québec alleging violations to federal banking regulations and consumer protection legislation in connection with credit card over-limit fees

Professional Involvement

Before joining Torys, Jason clerked for two Justices at the Federal Court of Canada and articulated for a large Montréal law firm.

Memberships and Affiliations

Jason is a member of the Lord Reading Law Society, the Advocates’ Society, and the Canadian Bar Association.

Insights

Ontario enters the private sector privacy realm: what the new privacy law consultation means for business
August 24, 2020

Québec's Bill 64 proposes sweeping changes to its privacy regime
June 19, 2020

COVID-19 and the workplace: Québec considerations
March 31, 2020

COVID-19 as force majeure in Québec: key considerations, implications, and practical tips
March 31, 2020